SYMPHONY OF STYLE AND SPIRIT

Milan's enchanting combination of historical relevance and cutting-edge design captivates travelers seeking Italy's modern soul.

Wander the streets of Milan where a charismatic composition invites travelers to tread the line between the past and the future. Renaissance brilliance lingers in the air, but venture beyond and you will encounter a city at the forefront of cultural and artistic evolution while retaining echoes of its past charm.

Set between the foothills of the Alps and the expansive Po Valley, Milan's transformative role during Napoleon's reign and its pivotal role in the unification of Italy in the 19th century sculpted its enduring legacy. Since then, it has evolved into a contemporary hub, a pulsating city forging ahead with a visionary spirit.

Sleek skyscrapers in the financial district stand testament to this. Known also as one of the world's fashion capitals, Milan exudes sartorial elegance and sets the trend for global style with its renowned designers, high-end emporiums, and annual Fashion Weeks.

As the sun sets on the stylish cityscape, Milan invites you to partake in the age-old tradition of cin cin, celebrating its triumphs and the promise of endless possibilities. Step into the symphony of Milan, a city where the past and future harmonize to create a crescendo of style, culture, and innovation.

Alla Moda

If Milan's essence could be captured in a single street, it would undeniably be Via Montenapoleone. With its origins rooted atop ancient Roman walls, it saw the rise of banks in the 1800s, followed by a neoclassical renovation in the next century. However, it wasn't until mid-20th century that it blossomed into a hotspot for fashion houses, joining the ranks of prestigious avenues like Champs-Élysées, Fifth Avenue, Rodeo Drive, and Bond Street. Mentioning its name alone evokes impeccably dressed individuals and dazzling designer boutiques. It is simply the best open-air shopping district in the world.

Every thoroughfare within the MonteNapoleone District tells a story of sophistication, where haute couture and trailblazing trends converge. Yet it is not solely the realm of fashion – cafes and restaurants bolster efforts to revitalize the area with high-end hotels and public art installations complementing the energetic atmosphere.

Head over to the vibrant Navigli district (who said the canals are only in Venice?) to uncover vintage treasures and unique finds in its eclectic shops and markets. Explore the bohemian vibe of Corso Como, where international bazaars and concept stores await your discovery.

Step into the Galleria Vittorio Emanuele II, ornately adorned and crowned by a magnificent glass dome, for a Cinderella meets Prince Charming moment. Here, amid the hustle and bustle of shoppers, you'll experience Milan's enduring elegance and timeless allure.

Architectural Splendor

Milan's skyline is a fusion of old and new, creating a captivating panorama. Marvel at the intricate Gothic spires of the Duomo di Milano and duck into the majestic Castello Sforzesco, housing the work of art masters and historical artifacts. In contrast to this historic charm, the avant-garde skyscrapers of the Porta Nuova district include the towering curved UniCredit Tower, Italy's tallest building at 758 feet. The city also bears the mark of renowned local and international architects: Stefano Boeri's Bosco Verticale, whose lush green balconies redefined urban living; Gio Ponti and Pier Luigi Nervi's midcentury design wonder, the Pirelli Tower; and the twisted Generali Tower, one of Zaha Hadid's final designs.

Culinary Excellence

Embark on a gastronomic journey in trendy Porta Nuova, where Michelin-starred restaurants reinvent the art of Italian dining. Of course, one cannot discuss Milanese cuisine without mentioning the city's signature dish — risotto alla Milanese, tinged bright yellow with saffron. Milan stands as the birthplace of the Italian aperitivo culture. The tradition of toasting to Milan's success with a pre-dinner drink has become a quintessential Italian experience. The city offers a plethora of trendy bars and cozy trattorias where locals and visitors alike can savor classic Italian flavors.

Design Delights

Never one to rest on its laurels, Milan continues to enthrall travelers with its commitment to design distinction. A new museum, home to the esteemed historical collection of Compasso d'Oro design award winners, highlights Milan's pivotal role in shaping the world of design. It joins the Triennale di Milano, a museum of art and design in Parco Sempione that celebrated 100 years last year. The city's lively cultural scene also fascinates with an array of contemporary art spaces and museums, such as the Fondazioni Rovati. Here, the Etruscan story comes to life through the creative lens of contemporary artists, weaving an intriguing narrative that spans the gap between ancient history and modern expression.

Cultural Gems

Unearth the cultural jewels of Milan, from Leonard da Vinci's Last Supper at the Convent of Santa Maria delle Grazie to the artistic wonders of the Pinacoteca di Brera, a gallery that houses an impressive collection of Renaissance masterpieces. Fondazione Prada adds a contemporary twist, weaving historical elements with pioneering design. Meanwhile, one of the oldest and most iconic venues in Milan, Teatro alla Scala, built in 1778, has hosted legendary performances by opera greats and continues to be a symbol of excellence in classical music, ballet, and opera.

PRETTY IN PINK

Let yourself get lost in the dream of Palazzo Avino:
A fairytale spun from heritage, charm, and
Ravello's endless enchantment.

The Amalfi Coast has always been an obligatory stop on the Grand Tour of Italy, where travelers sought respite and genuine Italian encounters. At the heart of this captivating coastline stands rosé-hued Palazzo Avino, an expansive 12th-century noble villa perched on a promontory overlooking the Tyrrhenian Sea.

Managed with familial care and flair by sisters Attilia and Mariella Avino, The Pink Palace, as it is affectionately known, offers up an interesting history and breathtaking views. Pristine white interior walls and delicate Vietri tile floors express the refreshing coastal aesthetic.

As the eldest daughter, Mariella, the visionary, took on responsibilities at the hotel sooner than she had imagined but calls the adventure a 'beautiful rollercoaster.' Attilia, director of sales and marketing, cultivates eclecticism, ensuring unique and unforgettable stays.

Together, they navigate the challenges and rewards of running a family-owned hotel, with their own parents as the most discriminating guests on the property. Mariella and Attilia share with DUCO insights about their property and life on Italy's most famous coast.

The idea for Palazzo Avino began with your parents' dream of owning a hotel. What led you both to follow them?

Our father always dreamed of having his own hotel; as kids, we would visit beautiful properties for sale. When he discovered the abandoned building on the hill of Ravello, he saw its potential and fell in love, making his dream come true.

After two years of renovations, we opened in 1997 and have continued to add "colors" to the property. Growing up with The Pink Palace inspired us from a young age, emphasizing authenticity and a local soul as our everyday mantra.

The palazzo dates back to the 12th century. How do you balance preserving the hotel's past with offering up-to-date amenities?

I think every step we make in the future of this special place, we have to feel the responsibility for the past and we have to respect our heritage. We try to find the right balance between the present, the future, and the past.

How would you describe the palazzo's unique appeal?

Arriving at this magical point of the Amalfi Coast is a voyage unto itself. Each room at Palazzo Avino tells a different story; each stay writes a unique chapter: from pointed arches to suspended balconies, citrus groves and culinary wonders, cobblestone alleys and seaside joys.

Aside from its stunning views and cultural traditions, what makes Ravello so special?

Ravello is lost in time. Despite the growing fame, it kept the charm of the small Italian village of the south. It never gets crowded. The whole village is [filled with] small shops and restaurants led by local families, making its personality incredibly unique. We are all keen to discover the inner soul of what surrounds us, and places like Ravello and the Pink Palace have so much to tell.

Since 1953, this small town has hosted the Ravello Festival, luring the world's most talented musicians to the self-described "City of Music."

Ravello has long inspired international creatives of every genre, such as composers Wagner, Verdi, and Grieg, and artists Mirò and Escher. American writer and intellectual Gore Vidal was so captured by Ravello's enchantment, he lived more than 30 years there.

The Sanoner Family at ADLER Lodge ALPE

SEVENTH HEAVEN

A 200-year family tradition takes mountain hospitality to new heights.

In the heart of the Dolomites, ADLER Spa Resorts & Lodges unfolds a saga of seven generations driven by entrepreneurial spirit and commitment to enduring heritage. It all began in 1810 when the Sanoner family first opened an inn in Ortisei, marking humble beginnings that eventually grew into ADLER Spa Resort DOLOMITI, an Italian Alpine retreat that transcends time. It gave rise to a legacy, nurtured by matriarch Elly and guided by her sons Andreas and Klaus, embracing bespoke spa experiences and expanding beyond Val Gardena's boundaries. Now, the seventh generation – Franziska, Moritz, Lukas, and Maximilian – infuses fresh energy into the family's vision. DUCO talks with managing partner Moritz Sanoner about his family's journey.

Your family has an incredible story that brings together the land and your legacy. Where did it all begin?

Our family's journey is one of vision and resilience, driven by the desire to create lasting and meaningful establishments. Our ancestors were traders who had emigrated to France. They returned to invest in the beauty of the Dolomites. Our hotels offer you the opportunity to live nature in its purest form without compromising on comfort and service.

What does the locale mean to the Adler identity?

We want our guests to experience the regionality and authenticity of our culture and environment. We use local materials, design architecture reflecting local styles, showcase local culture through outdoor programs, hire passionate local staff, and create a warm atmosphere.

Your grandmother, Elly Sanoner, shepherded the company for decades. What imprint did she leave?

Elly was not only our grandmother but also our mentor and inspiration. She taught us how to welcome our guests with warmth, respect, and attention. Her vision of a close-knit community remains alive and inspires our staff to create the most welcoming environment for our guests every day.

How do you balance preserving traditions and values with evolving Adler Spa Resorts & Lodges?

Our values and principles have been handed down from generation to generation: trust, respect, determination, honesty, commitment, loyalty, humility and down-to-earthiness, self-responsibility, curiosity and openness. These values are not just words. They are a living code of conduct.

We are committed to preserving and evolving the traditions and values that have made ADLER a successful and sustainable brand. Still, we also bring in fresh perspectives and innovative ideas that reflect our global education and work experience.

The Dolomites are your origins. How do the majestic mountains shape your expansion and evolution?

The Dolomites are integral to our identity. Expanding to Tuscany and Sicily reflects our desire to share the diversity and richness of Italy. We seek locations matching our Dolomite home's splendor, maintaining our high standards of quality and uniqueness.

CASTELLO DI VICARELLO

Neri Baccheschi Berti

Finding an unspoiled corner of Tuscany – one of the most sought-after destinations – is a near-impossible task. Creating a refined hideaway in a remote locale here is a triumph the Baccheschi Berti family has achieved with Castello di Vicarello. The rundown castle and its outer buildings in the Maremma lured Carlo and Aurora away from their 1970s globe-trotting life between Milan and Bali and launched them and their three young boys into a 12-year restoration project. Historical roots were retained; Indonesian influences and modern art from their travels add a fresh touch to the estate that dates to the 12th century. It opened as a hotel in 2003, and those boys, now grown, manage the property where they spent their childhood and still live today. Ten exquisite suites combine charm with modern efficiency. Inspired by mom Aurora's cookbook, the farm-to-table approach delivers authentic Italian dining. And the estate's award-winning vineyard, plastic-free initiatives, and renewable energy highlight their commitment to sustainability. One of many delights is joining a local supplier, lovingly known as "Il Formaggione" or The Big Cheese, for a cheese-making class. "We strongly believe that real luxury is that of hospitality," says Neri, the middle brother, espousing the family ethos, "making our guests live an experience with the warmth that distinguishes us."

VILLA FELTRINELLI

Markus Odermatt

Nestled on eight acres of Lake Garda's shore, imagine days lounging by the pool, exploring the lush gardens, or cruising the lake on a private boat, then returning to the indulgence of a two-star Michelin meal starring creative herbs and edible flowers plucked from the gardens. This stately neo-Gothic villa – a mini-castle of sorts with ornate parapets, star-shaped attic windows, and original ceiling frescoes – was built in 1892 as a retreat by lumber magnate Faustino Feltrinelli forebearer to the founders of Feltrinelli publishing and the hotel's ambiance, says general manager Markus Odermatt, is intended to take guests back to the property's storied past. Twenty bespoke rooms spread across the villa and several cottages on the grounds offer a glimpse of life with its illustrious guests: D. H. Lawrence penned a poem about the villa, and Churchill immortalized it in watercolors. Just two hours from both Milan and Venice, with breathtaking views of water and mountains, Villa Feltrinelli is an elegant escape where serenity meets sophistication at every turn.

Villa Marina Capri Hotel & Spa

When I Paint My Masterpiece

On the enigmatic isle of Capri, where the azure sea gently caresses the rugged cliffs, Hotel La Palma is a magnum opus. Steeped in rich hues of history, this enchanting centuries-old haven was reawakened in 2023 after an exquisite metamorphosis.

When Giuseppe Pagano first flung open the doors of his villa to travelers 200 years ago, a kaleidoscope of artists, poets, and musicians flowed in. Creativity coursed like a soft breeze, turning walls into canvases and hallways into impromptu concert stages.

Steps away from the celebrated Piazzetta square in Capri town, the villa evolved into the island's first hotel, christened La Palma in homage to a majestic tree guarding over its artistic fervor. Decades later, embracing 1950s jet-set lifestyle, La Palma beckoned those seeking the enduring fascination of la dolce vita.

Fast forward to the hotel's recent redesign, orchestrated by the Oetker Collection. Echoing its artistic past, the new look features ceiling frescoes and splashes of Mediterranean blue, green, and turquoise that dance around the interiors, reflecting Capri's spirit.

Imelda Shllaku, the general manager, relishes in the excitement of Hotel La Palma's revival. "We strive to immerse our guests in the compelling narrative of its past," she says.

That narrative unites the past with a luminous present. Michelin-starred maestro Chef Gennaro Esposito, the culinary guardian, elevates gastronomy to an art form. Gennaro's, Bianca, and Da Gioia are heartfelt tributes to the island's luminaries, says Shllaku. "Our signature cocktail list nods to the old Locanda Pagano guests and friends," she adds, inviting guests to sip on stories etched into the walls.

The 50 rooms and suites feature bespoke furniture and marble- and bronze-adorned baths. A new pool deck overlooks the classic boutiques of Via Vittorio Emanuele, and a signature spa offers an escape from the island's social life. The rooftop bar provides incomparable views of the rocky isle and the sea. And the private beach club at Marina Piccola, also open to outside guests, recalls the long, lazy summers of leisure Capri is so famous for.

Shllaku sums it up: "Hotel La Palma is a harmonious blend of innovation, sustainability, personalized experiences, and a deep connection to the local community." Each moment is an artistic stroke in the canvas of Capri's eternal masterpiece.

"Here and there in the gardens rises a palm tree, and the most beautiful one is that of our innkeeper Pagano's garden, whose house, compared to the others in Capri, deserves the name of a palace."

German Historian Ferdinand Gregorovius, writing in 1853 about the island of Capri and the Hotel La Palma (then known as Casa Pagano).

Chef Gennaro Esposito began his culinary journey in his family's pastry shop outside Naples. He honed his skills in local pizzerias and then with esteemed chefs Gianfranco Vissani and Alain Ducasse before returning home to open his own restaurant, which garnered two Michelin stars. He was just 22. Now at the helm of Hotel La Palma's restaurants, Esposito's avant-garde Italian cuisine blends simplicity, tradition, and a deep connection to his roots.

The Shape of Water

In the heart of Italy, where traditions echo through time, lies Palazzo Fiuggi Wellness Medical Retreat, a refuge that gracefully intertwines the ancient art of “taking the waters” with splendid contemporary comfort.

The Italian practice of “taking the waters” is a revered tradition that taps into the healing powers of natural mineral springs. At Palazzo Fiuggi, the spring water, originating from the heart of the Italian hills, is not just a sip of refreshment; it’s a plunge into centuries-old wellness practices. Fiuggi water, believed to have cured the ailments of Pope Boniface VIII and Michelangelo, has been a source of vitality and rejuvenation for centuries.

Palazzo Fiuggi’s recent transformation into a world-renowned medical spa is the long-held vision of Lorenzo Giannuzzi.

“My love story with Palazzo Fiuggi is quite a peculiar one” recalls Giannuzzi, a luminary in Italian hospitality. It dates back to 1993 when Giannuzzi was first named general manager of the property. “I wanted to create a sophisticated and very innovative medical wellness spa concept. I thought that the specific characteristics of Fiuggi were ideal: the miraculous water, the right altitude for perfect oxygenation of the body, and an uncontaminated green and natural valley.”

The project stalled but 30-years later, Giannuzzi’s passion for Fiuggi inspired an extensive redevelopment.

Built in 1913 on a wooded eight hectares rich with natural springs an hour south of Rome, the Liberty-style property evokes the grandeur of a bygone era. Famed figures, including Pablo Picasso and Ingrid Bergman, sought solace in its halls. Today, the refined 102 rooms, adorned with Murano chandeliers and original parquet, offer a sanctuary overlooking the picturesque town of Fiuggi.

Palazzo Fiuggi marries a holistic philosophy of well-being with 21st-century medical expertise. Guests enjoy the therapeutic embrace of these legendary waters in the property’s indoor/outdoor pools. From Roman-inspired baths to a hammam, every moment is a celebration of these waters that have drawn pilgrims from around the world.

And in a nod to the Italian love affair with food, Michelin-starred chef Heinz Beck crafts menus that not only delight the palate but also align with the wellness principles.

“In other words you are in a medical wellness retreat but you have the sensation of being on holidays,” says Giannuzzi. A holiday where nature and ‘the waters’ reign supreme.
